

Where to Find a Non-Traditional Thanksgiving Meal in Vegas

Who needs roast turkey when you can have tacos, curry, BBQ or a caviar parfait?

By Andy Wang • 11/17/16

Las Vegas' always-open, anything-you-want mentality means that Thanksgiving is a day where you really don't have to eat roast turkey if you're not in the mood for it. Here are six great ways to celebrate the holiday with a different kind of feast

For a Journey Around Asia

This Thai green curry is another way to eat turkey on Thanksgiving. Andrea's

You really want turkey for Thanksgiving? Sure, head to Andrea's at Steve Wynn's Encore resort, where Filipino-American chef Joseph Elevado has turkey Thai green curry ($36) with coconut, kabocha squash, winter melon, dried cranberries and Thai basil as his Thanksgiving special. You can also order off the regular menu for all your pork belly sisig, wagyu beef, hamachi sashimi, Jidori chicken-leg adobo, Chinese-sausage fried rice and vegan spicy-tofu roll cravings.